Deduction of Income Tax of the Air India and Indian Airlines Pilots

Air India

With effect from 1-4-89, the Income Tax Act was amended whereby no allowance, even if granted, wholly or necessarily for the purpose of performance of duty is exempted from tax unless it is so notified by the Central Government. Air India approached the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) in March, 1990 to exempt payment of tax on various allowances that were being paid to pilots and were treated as non-taxable upto the date the Income Tax Act was amended. In response the CBDT notified all the allowances as exempt except the following :

(i) Indrtial Navigation System Allowance ;

(ii) Flight Management System Allowance (FMS) ;

(iii) Simulator (Lecture) Allowance.

Air Ind a appealed to the CBDT in April, 1990 to reconsider the matter. Expecting a favourable reply from CBDT. Air India had kept the tax deduction in abeyance and no tax was deducted at source while making payment of the above three allowances.

CBDT has clarified vide Circular No. 133/158/93-TPL dated 20-10-93 that all allowances except the following are to be considered' for deduction of tax at source :

(a) Any allowance granted to an employee to meet the cost of travel on tour or on transfer ;

(b) Any allowance whether on tour or for period of journey in connection with transfer granted to meet the ordinary daily charges incurred by the employee on account of his absence from normal place of duty.

(c) Any allowance granted to meet the expenditure incurred on conveyance in the performance of duties.

(d) Any allowance granted to meet the expenditure incurred in the purchase or maintenance of uniform for wear in the performance of duties.

Air India has since commenced deduction of tax at source from allowances paid to pilots with effect from October, 1993. In resyiect of payment of tax and its recovery from pilots for the past year, the matter is being resolved by Air India through dis-cussitan- with the concerned tax authoritiei.

Indian Airlines

Communication has been received from Income Tax authorities, informing that the various flying allowances like Meal Allowance. etc, given to the pilots are subject to tax as these have not been specifically notified for exemption from payment of tax in accordance with income tax amendment order with effect from 1-4-1989. Indian Airlines has stated that the exemption from payment of tax on these allowances had been given by Central Board of Director Taxes (CBDT) vide its various circulars issued during 1974 to 1977. The matter has been taken up by Indian Airlines with the tax authorities for issue of suitable clarification.
